LEGAL

Federal law requires us to verify new employees' eligibility to work in the United States. Within three business days of beginning your new position, you will be required to provide proof of your identity and employment eligibility.

Were you ever discharged by any company? Yes No If yes, give name of company(ies)

Reason for discharge

Have you ever been convicted of a crime?

- Skip above question if applicant resides in Colorado; DC; Hawaii; Illinois; Massachusetts; Minnesota; New Jersey; or Rhode Island. Revised
- Answer "No" if the records have been erased, expunged, shielded, sealed or annulled by a court. (Circle one) Yes No

The existence of a criminal record will not automatically disqualify you from the job for which you are applying. Convictions will be evaluated based on their substantial relationship to the particular job's requirements. If yes, please explain the offense and final disposition:

- Do not disclose any arrest records or non-felony traffic violations.
- Do not disclose any convictions relating to juvenile offenses.
- Do not disclose any records regarding a referral to, and participation in, any pretrial or post-trial diversion program in lieu of a criminal conviction.
- In addition to the above, the following states have additional restrictions on what information may be requested:
- California applicants are not required to disclose (a) misdemeanor convictions where probation has been completed or otherwise discharged and the case is dismissed; (b) marijuana-related convictions that occurred more than two years prior to application date.
- Colorado applicants
- Connecticut applicants are not required to disclose erased criminal or arrest records (which are treated under law as if they never occurred) or dismissed or nolleed criminal charges, charges that resulted in acquittals and convictions that resulted in absolute pardons.
- District of Columbia applicants are not required to disclose criminal convictions until after a conditional offer of employment is made.
- Hawaii applicants are not required to disclose criminal conviction records until after a conditional offer of employment is made, and then such inquiries can only related to matters occurring within the previous 10 years (not including periods of incarceration).
- Idaho applicants are not required to disclose misdemeanor convictions.
- Illinois applicants are not required to disclose criminal convictions until after a conditional offer of employment is made.
- Maine applicants are not required to disclose convictions for certain Class E crimes committed when they were young adults.
- Massachusetts applicants are not required to disclose criminal convictions until after a conditional offer of employment is made and required disclosures provided to the applicant. Massachusetts applicants also are not required to disclose salary or hourly wage information from a previous employer.
- Minnesota applicants are not required to disclose criminal convictions until after a conditional offer of employment is made.
- New Jersey applicants are not required to disclose criminal convictions until after a conditional offer of employment is made.
- New York applicants are not required to disclose criminal convictions resolved through youthful offender adjudication.
- North Dakota applicants are not required to disclose criminal convictions that occurred more than three years prior to the application.
- Pennsylvania applicants are not required to disclose criminal convictions that occurred more than three years prior to the application.
- Rhode Island applicants are not required to disclose criminal convictions until after a conditional offer of employment is made.
- South Dakota applicants are not required to disclose misdemeanor offenses that occurred at least 10 years prior to the application or for offenses no longer considered crimes or for any offenses committed by an applicant 75 years or older who has not committed a violation within the previous 10 years.
- Utah applicants may be required to obtain copies of their own criminal record history and supply it as part of the application review process.
- Washington applicants are not required to disclose criminal convictions unless they occurred less than 10 years prior to the application and such convictions are reasonably related to the job duties of the position being applied for.

APPLICANT STATEMENT

I certify that all information that I have provided is complete, true and correct, to the best of my knowledge. I understand that if any information on this application is found to be false, it will be sufficient cause for my application to be rejected or for my dismissal, depending on when it is discovered.

I understand that, if I am hired, I am free to resign at any time, with or without cause and with or without prior notice. I also understand that the company reserves the same right to terminate my employment at any time, with or without cause and with or without prior notice, except as may be required by law. This application does not constitute an agreement or contract for employment for any specified period or definite duration. I understand that my employment is an "at will" status and no supervisor or representative of the employer is authorized to make any assurances to the contrary and that no implied oral or written agreements to the contrary are valid.

I authorize the investigation of any and all statements made in this application, my resume and interview. This includes, but is not limited to contacting and obtaining information from all references, employers, public agencies, licensing authorities and educational institutions. I hereby waive any and all rights and claims I may have regarding the employer, its agents, employees or representatives, for seeking, gathering and using such information in the employment process and all other persons, corporations or organization for furnishing such information about me.

I understand that I may be requested to sign an Authorization and Release of Information Form for a Pre-Employment Background Check which may seek information as to my character, work habits and reasons for termination of past employment. Additionally, I understand that by signing such Authorization and Release of Information Form, information may be obtained from various federal, state and local agencies concerning my past activities relating to driving record, criminal record, previous employment, education and other aspects of my background which may be relevant to an employment decision. I understand that any offer of employment or continued employment is conditioned upon verification of reference information, my driving record, and successful completion of a background check and criminal records review.

I also understand that as part of the application process, I will be required to submit to a drug test. Prior to the test I will be provided a copy of the policy and a copy of any positive test result. I further understand that any offer of employment or continued employment is conditioned on my receiving a negative test result.

DO NOT SIGN UNTIL YOU HAVE READ THE ABOVE APPLICANT STATEMENT.

I certify that I have read, fully understand and accept all the terms of the Applicant Statement.
